Police Head Cheerful as New Bomb Is Found, but No Baff Clew.

PREVENTION BETTER THAN CURE, HE SAYS

Talks at Luncheon of Ending Cause of Gangs Likened by Judge Gibbs to Wolves.

"Nothing new," was the laconic response of inspector Faurot, of the Central Office Detective Bureau, last night, on the eighteenth day since the murder of Barnet Baff, the wealthy West. Washington Market poultryman.

"We are just as anxious as the newspapers to get a lead," said Commissioner Arthur Woods, "but while we are investigating numerous clews we have nothing deinite to announce. I am still confident, however, that the slayers of Baff will be brought to justice."

While the police officials were thus m a complacent mood yesterday, another attempted bomb outrage was added to the long list of such crimes reported within the last two months.

The latest bomb was found in a two story vacant stucco house at Crown Hill Road and Terrace av., Jamaics, late yesterday afternoon by Patrolmen O'Brien and Kolson, of the local precinct. The bomb was wrapped in a red paper covering and had a fuse three inches long attached to it. It contained two pounds of giant gunpowder. In the Bronx County Court yesterday ludge Gibbs, in sentencing three Black Handers to terms in state prison for extortion, said:

"These organized criminals are like wolves. They hunt in packs and prefer to attack in the dark. They should be caged, and I purpose to do all in my power to see that they are caged."

The men sentenced were Audio Candio, twenty-two, and Antonio Mauro, thirty years old. Candio was sentenced to from five years to nine years and six months. They threatened Michael Magiano, of 1445 Undercliff av., with death unless he paid $1,000.

A petition was presented signed by ten of the jurors who convicted Cummins, and it was stated that the other two could not be reached, one being in Functional that Cummins would not have been convicted if evidence recently secured had been known to the jury.

Chancellor John Allison, of the Court of Middle Tennessee, said that he attended the trial of Cummins and found only two material questions involved.

The question of expense should not be an obstacle. Protection of the lives of patrons is of more importance to the interborough than the saving of money. "I would not place a hardship upon a corporation any more than on an individual. Everything should be done in a sane and reasonable manner, but the fact remains that wooden cars, some of which, now used on the elevated, are relies of a bygone age and generation, must be wiped away from both the subway and elevated lines in the city."

There is no rule of the Public Service Commission, Chairman McCall expinined yesterday, that requires the use of steel cars on any transit line. In the new subways, however, he said all the rolling stock would be of steel. Early yesterday a keg of grapes and a box of apples were stolen from in front of M. Hoffman's wholesale fruit store, at 275 Washington st., which is one of the stores that retain Miss Ryan as watcher.

Later in the morning she saw a negro loitering about some of the stores and asked him what his business was. He replied, she asserts, that he was looking for something to eat. Yesterday afternoon Miss Ryan was walking in Chambers st. and saw the negro with a box under his arm. She called to him to stop. Instead of obeying the command he fled.

He dashed up the stairs to the elevated platform, casting the apples away so that he could make speed. Just as he was about to hoard a train Miss Ryan tackled him. The order to arrest Hoag followed an ante-mortem statement made to Coroner Hellenstein in the Harlem Hospital by Alice Threet, a negress, of Rockville Centre, Long Island. She died on February 21, 1910, as the result of an operation which she said was performed by Dr. Hoag.

On February 26, 1910, Hoag surrendered himself to Mr. Schwartz and was released in $5.000 bail. An inquest was held March 10, 1910, the finding being that Alice Threet's death was due to an operation performed "in a manner

Hoag was held in $3,000 bail yesterday in the Harlem police court for examination on Wednesday. He was arrested by Detective Charles Cresson, the same patroiman who was detailed in plain clothes in 1910 to arrest him. The evidence of drug selling upon which the arrest was made Thursday night was obtained by investigators for the Department of Correction, the same investigators who dug into the traffic in narcotics on Blackwell's Island.

Interborough Must Tell Why Structures Should

tion of Motors.

A hearing, at which the Interborough Rapid Transit Company will have to show cause why the elevated railroad structures should not be strengthened to support all-steel cars, was called yes-terday by the Public Service Commis-sion. The wreck on the Ninth av. "L" at 116th st. Wednesday evening, in which two lives were lost and a score of persons injured when two wooden cars were smashed and burned, has led to widespread agitation for the

TRUNK JURY DISAGREES Second Trial of Man Accused

in Death Mystery.

The jury in the trial of Victor Muralvoff, charged with murdering Ivan Martysewitz on December 29, 1913, and placing his body in a trunk, disagreed yesterday. The trial was held before Justice Vernon M. Davis, in the Supreme Court. At Muralvoff's first trial the jury disagreed.

Martysewitz, according to the evidence, was lured to a house in East 11th st. and drugged with wine. Karl Dranowicz, in whose apartment the murder occurred, was sentenced to death.

The object of the murder was rob-
